

Caroline Cranos, MPH, NCTTP, is the current President of ATTUD. She is the Training Program and Contract Manager for the Center for Tobacco Treatment Research and Training (CTTRT) at the University of Massachusetts Chan Medical School. She directs CTTRT's accredited Tobacco Treatment Specialist program which has trained professionals in the provision of evidence-based tobacco use disorder treatment since 2009. Caroline also works with the Massachusetts Tobacco Cessation and Prevention Program, MA Department of Public Health, to promote state healthcare providers' use of evidence-based treatment modalities for addressing commercial tobacco/nicotine use through a health equity lens. She has been a part of research teams investigating the effectiveness of patient education and decision-making protocols as well as patient utilization of cancer screenings. She lives in Massachusetts and enjoys tap dancing and playing guitar.
